Juanicó Teru Teru Tannat Reserve 2018

In Uruguay tannat is a little softer than that of Madiran, France. It retains its wild blackberry-like character, possessing ripe black fruit, mild astringency and fresh acidity. Its structure begs food. Enjoy with a hunk of protein, some hard cheese and/or the fattier cuts of meat like shoulder of lamb or pork. Uruguay is very different from Chile and Argentina. Its South Atlantic climate brings 1100 mm of rain a year (cf Mendoza, Argentina, with 200mm and Santiago, Chile, with 650mm) So whereas irrigation is necessary in most of Argentina and Chile (a vine needs about 700mm a rain a year), in Uruguay varieties that are rot resistant like tannat are required. Its cooler climate produces wines with a more European feel, being lower in alcohol and higher in acidity and with a more restrained fruitiness than most South American wines. In Uruguay tannat is a little softer and rounder than that found in its homeland of Madiran, France. Uruguay means 'the river of painted birds' in the indigenous Guarani language. The Teru Teru, common in Uruguay and its national bird, is the southern plover, like the European plover but bigger and with sharp spikes on its wings. It is fiercely territorial, dive bombing and shrieking loudly to protect its nest and young. The name and emblem of the national rugby team is Los Teros, named after this bird.

Domaine Cordier, Mâcon Aux Bois d'Allier 2017

It sounds a little like an expensive barrel, but Bois d'Allier is a vineyard, near Charnay. Low yields here explain the uncommon depth of flavour for a white Burgundy of this price. It was matured in large oak casks, or foudres, for about a year to allow its flavours to develop without oak aromas.

Tio Toto Pedro Ximenez

A natural sweet wine, the result of drying Pedro Ximenez grapes outside in the sun to concentrate the sugars. The must is then partly fermented to make this luscious, rich, intensely sweet sherry with aromas of dried figs, raisins, coffee and sultanas. The palate is silky and very rich, but not cloying due to an extremely fresh finish. The ideal wine to accompany Christmas pudding or bitter chocolate mousse, yet it will also work well with blue cheeses and is heavenly when poured over vanilla ice cream. Once opened, it will keep for months.

Half bottle of Crozes Hermitage, Domaine de Thalabert Paul Jaboulet Aîné 2013

A densely packed, concentrated and dark wine. Lots of black fruit here which is ripe but also with an uplifting freshness. The oak too is well judged and the stock of barrels from Château La Lagune in Bordeaux (which is under the same ownership) is being replaced by larger 500-litre casks which tend to favour fruit flavours more. A very classy syrah indeed.

Tio Pepe Fino 'En Rama' (2019 bottling)

En rama is sherry in its raw, most delicate state, as if drinking directly from the cask. It is deeper in colour than the normal bottling of Tio Pepe, more aromatic and with a smooth, almost soft texture, and a very long finish. Though fino Sherry's normal bottling process extends shelf life, ensures stability and reduces bottle variation, it also removes some of the wine's colour, texture and flavour. For En Rama, treatments are minimised to allow all that lovely flavour – and even some yeast – into the bottle. That means that this is the next best thing to tasting sherry straight from the cask! It is bottled every April when flor (yeast) activity is at its peak, giving it a deeper colour and sometimes slightly cloudy appearance thanks to the yeast cells. The result is sensational: a more aromatic fino with intense yeasty aromas and a fuller, rounder palate. 2019 marks the 10th anniversary of this wine and is amongst the best we have tasted. En Rama has much more flavour than most sherries but it is less stable. We recommend storing it below 12°C and enjoying it within a year of bottling (i.e. by March 2020). Serve cool, about 10°C, and enjoy!

Maycas del Limarí Pinot Noir Reserva Especial 2016

The best vintage so far of this lovely pinot from Chile's cool Limarí region. 2016 was a cool year and the team here used 15% whole-bunch fermentation to contribute extra freshness. Maison Roche de Bellene, Montagny 2016

From the lovely 2016 vintage, this is a ripe yet fresh white Burgundy with flavours in the apple and melon spectrum. Nicolas Potel has made this wine with his characteristic attention to detail, fermenting and maturing it carefully in stainless steel to produce a clean, fresh yet substantial chardonnay with apple and melon flavours and fine, persistent length on the palate. Montagny, from the Côte Chalonnaise, has finer flavours than the warmer Mâconnais to the south while being cheaper than the prestigious wines of the Côte d'Or and so offers excellent value for money.

Sendiäna Rouge 2014

A beautifully crafted blend of mostly cabernet and merlot with a dash of syrah, grenache and mourvèdre. All of the vineyards are to be found at high altitudes (ensuring freshness), on the maritime side of Mount Lebanon and in the Bekaa Valley. Each has been chosen for their different soil compositions which add complexity to the wine. The name Sendiäna means 'oak', a tree the Lebanese have a great fondness for, which grows in abundance around the vineyards, and plays an important role in this wine's production. It spends a year in mostly French oak prior to bottling, which adds a cedary peppery tone to the rich dark-fruit flavours of the fruit. A gorgeous wine to decant and savour with wintry stews and hearty comfort food.

Maycas del Limar? San Julian Pinot Noir 2016

One of Chile's best pinots and the best vintage of this wine so far: a cool year, producing very fine, intensely flavoured fruit. It comes from a vineyard situated on the southern bank of the Limarí River, where the cool climate and the ideal mix of clay and limestone soil, and the moderate yields, produce a well-structured wine. Many Chilean pinots have been beautifully fresh and fruity but lacking mid-palate depth and length. This has that extra structure, without dryness, and that extra length, without heaviness.

Magnum of Nino Franco Brut Prosecco Superiore NV

A magnum of fine fizz looks fantastic, and this one tasted so good that the choice to stock it in this party-perfect format seemed a natural decision. Its enticing blossom and pear notes on the nose follow onto the palate with flavours of lemon and green apple, kept in delicious balance by its creamy mousse, before a dry crisp finish that leaves you refreshed and ready for a second glass. The prime hillside vineyards where the grapes are grown are 'DOCG' (Denominazione di Origine Controllata e Garantita, the highest designation of quality under Italian wine law) and rise steeply above the beautiful Valdobbiadene region. Cool yet well exposed, they give perfectly balanced grapes and the quality shines through in this top-quality Prosecco.

Jérôme Galeyrand, Côte de Nuits-Villages Les Retraits 2015

The tiny 'Les Retraits' vineyard is next to Mugnier's Nuits premier cru Clos de la Maréchale and also falls into the neighbouring commune of Comblanchien. Despite its lowly Côte de Nuits-Villages appellation, this is a beautifully crafted wine made from vines planted from 1925-1932. Jérôme is relatively new to winemaking having acquired his first tiny plot in 2002. He was originally in the food business but got the wine bug working the vintage at Domaine Alain Burguet for a couple of years. He employs organic and sustainable methods in the vineyard and vinifies in his small winery at his home. Refined and elegant with silky tannins and beautiful perfume belying its humble appellation.

Champagne Lilbert Grand Cru Blanc de Blancs Perlé NV

Champagne is, of course, a sparkling wine, and those all-important bubbles are all to do with the amount of sugar added to the juice – the more the sugar the bigger the bubbles. The tradition in Cramant is to make less fizzy Champagnes that are very fine and full-flavoured. Most sparkling wine is made with six atmospheres of pressure but here there is only about four. The result is a wine that is creamy rather than fully sparkling. Lovely on its own but also a perfect match for food.

Champagne Alfred Gratien Brut 2006

The 2006 is made from 63% chardonnay, 24% pinot meunier and 13% pinot noir, and is the first vintage that chef de cave Nicolas Jaeger blended without his father, who had overseen the harvest. A wonderful vintage and a generous style, this Champagne has a touch of flint, toast and lemon rind, and is rich yet elegant.

Mount Eden Santa Cruz Mountains Cabernet Sauvignon 2013

A seriously fine cabernet from the ocean-cooled Santa Cruz Mountains. A drought-affected year led to a low, concentrated crop that has given a great richness to this wine. That said, the wine still has lovely bright acidity that balances its the deep plum and blackcurrant flavours. Decant in advance if you can, in order to enjoy its full gamut of delicious cedary, spicy complexity.

Dominus Napa Valley 2014

A Napa cabernet with a French heritage: this world-class wine has been crafted by Bordeaux grandee Christian Moueix since 1981, and the 2014 vintage really shows the elegance of this formidable pedigree. A blend of 86% cabernet sauvignon 7% petit verdot, 7% cabernet franc, matured in French barrels (40% of which were new), this young wine has a beautiful vanilla-led oak aroma. The palate offers cassis, blackberry and mocha notes, with plenty of spice, anise and leather complexity developing in the glass. Captivating and charming now, but a truly special prospect for the cellar.
